Students of the St. Vincent Girls' High School were exposed to an enriching musical experience on Monday, March 2nd, 2026, when members of the internationally acclaimed Viatores Quartet visited the institution and performed during the school's general assembly.

The Berlin-based string ensemble delivered a captivating live performance, introducing students to classical chamber music and demonstrating the versatility of string instruments. Speaking during the visit, ensemble member Louisa Staples noted that performances within schools are an important part of the group's outreach, as they seek to inspire young people through music while fostering cultural exchange during their stay in St. Vincent and the Grenadines.

Music Teacher at the school, Otobong Essien, welcomed the engagement, highlighting the significance of exposing students to professional international musicians. He explained that such interactions encourage students to pursue musical excellence while deepening their appreciation for global music traditions.

The assembly also featured performances by the Girls' High School Choir, showcasing the talents of students and reflecting the school's continued commitment to the performing arts. The visit formed part of the quartet's cultural engagements in St. Vincent and the Grenadines as they prepare for upcoming public concerts across the country.
